- In the event of conflict between the Agreement and the Conditions, the Agreement shall prevail.
- These Conditions have been drawn up in Dutch and have been translated into various languages. In the unlikely event that there is a conflict between any such translation and the Dutch version, the latter shall prevail.

Article 2: Conclusion of an Agreement

- No offer, quotation, estimate or other statement made by the Seller shall bind the latter, even if it includes a deadline for acceptance, and it shall only serve as an invitation to place an Order.
- An Agreement shall only be concluded provided that and insofar as the Seller confirms an Order In Writing by means of a notice of confirmation, which notice shall serve as a correct and comprehensive record of the relevant Agreement in such a situation. In the absence of a Written Agreement or notice confirming an Order, the parties shall nevertheless be bound in the event that the Seller begins to execute the relevant Agreement. In that case the invoice and/or delivery note shall be considered to constitute a correct, comprehensive record of the relevant Agreement.
- Any addendum to or amendment of an Agreement shall only apply provided that and insofar as it is explicitly recorded In Writing by a representative of the Seller who is authorised to do so.

- A delivery time stipulated by the Seller shall be based on the circumstances prevailing in relation to the Seller when the relevant Agreement is concluded and shall be recorded by way of indication. If the delivery period is exceeded, the Buyer shall not be entitled to any compensation in this regard nor shall the Buyer be entitled to dissolve and terminate the Agreement in that case.
- The Seller is at its option entitled to make partial deliveries and separately invoice such partial deliveries.
- In the event that the Seller requires information and/or equipment for the purposes of executing an Agreement which the Buyer is required to supply, under no circumstances shall a term of delivery commence until all requisite information and/or equipment is in the Seller's possession, the Buyer has complied with their aforementioned obligation towards the Seller or the term of delivery is extended in accordance with the foregoing.
- If the Buyer does not or does not take timely possession of the Products, it shall be in default without a notice of default being required. In this case the Buyer shall be required to return the Products found to be defective. Upon providing the aforementioned service, the Seller shall have discharged its obligations in this respect completely.
- The usual tolerances for quantities, weights and measurements customary in the branch shall apply. The quantity and weight of any delivery of Products as recorded by the Seller on despatch from the place of loading shall be conclusive evidence of the weight received by the Buyer.

The Seller shall notify the Buyer of a price increase In Writing as soon as possible.

- The Seller shall at all times – also while the relevant Agreement is being executed – be entitled to require the Buyer to effect payment in advance or to tender any form of security, including but not confined to a pledge or bank guarantee. Should the Buyer fail to provide such security when first requested to do so, it shall be in default without any notice of default being required.
- If the Buyer does not pay any amount owed by it within the stated period, the Buyer shall be in default without a notice of default being required. In addition, as from the due date, the Buyer shall owe the Dutch statutory commercial interest referred to in Section 6:119a of the Dutch Civil Code. Both the legal and other costs incurred by the Seller to compel specific performance of the Buyer's obligations shall be paid by the Buyer.

Article 6: Retention of title

Furthermore, the Buyer shall be required to draw the relevant third party's attention to the Seller's rights (proprietary or otherwise).
- Notwithstanding the provisions of Clause 1 of this article, the implications of such retention of title to Products destined to be exported under property law shall be governed by the law of the receiving country but only provided that the aforementioned retention of title does not cease to apply under that law until the Buyer has paid all that it owes the Seller pursuant to any Agreement. This shall apply subject to the provisions of Section 10:128(2) of the Civil Code.

Article 7: Force Majeure

- Should the Seller be prevented from complying with its obligations under an Agreement due to Force Majeure, the period within which the Seller is required to fulfil its obligations shall be extended. In this case the Seller shall be relieved of all liability for any delay or non-compliance due to the situation of Force Majeure. The Seller shall inform the Buyer of a Force Majeure situation as soon as possible.
- Where a situation of Force Majeure persists for longer than two (2) consecutive months or where it is established that it will persist for more than two (2) months, either party shall be entitled to cancel the relevant Agreement by means of a Written notice to this effect. Nevertheless, the Seller shall be entitled to invoice the Buyer for that part of the Agreement that has already been executed.
